Trooper Dave Carshalton was with call-sign 24 Bravo, Grey's Scouts, while on the spoor of a 70 member strong ZANLA gang in the Gona-re-Zhou area. The spoor was being rapidly followed on horseback in an attempt to make contact before they escaped to Mozambique.

After some five hours tracking, the troops encountered a well-prepared ambush, and in the initial fire-fight, Dave was sadly shot and killed, having been the lead scout on the left flank where the contact was initiated. This action allowed the other members of the patrol time to dismount and skirmish towards where Dave had fallen.

G Cars and K Cars Fireforce deployed elements of 2 RAR to assist the horse troop, resulting in at least 40 deaths and several captures. Dave was on his own horse - a mare by the name of "Nuisance". The horse survived and was discovered and recovered sometime later when she was spotted by engineers escorting a convoy through the contact area.

Six months after graduating, John was on Territorial call-up with the scouts. A highly decorated Scout who had been in the unit since its inception had been abducted by ZANLA during home leave in November 1976 in the highly subverted Nyajena Tribal Trust Land near Fort Victoria. Sergeant Head Wuranda SCR BCR, with his artificial leg, had reportedly been marched by his captures to Mocambique after being 'sold' by his father but he was never seen again or his body found.

A year later his wife was in danger so Commanding Officer Lt Col Ron Reid-Daly ordered his RSM with twelve men in a well-fortified mini-column to fetch Mrs Wuranda to bring her back for her protection into safety in married quarters at Nkomo Barracks. She was collected with her possessions but on the return leg on the same route on the same day - as there was absolutely no alternative - they were ambushed by a force of 50 ZANLA. Within seconds, Sergeant Chiutsi Ringisayi, Lance Corporal Richard Cook, Trooper John Barry Whitfield, and Trooper Martin Rungwe were killed. Trooper Basil Moss who had been wounded was casevaced but died in the helicopter before reaching Fort Victoria Hospital and his brother solemnly returned to base without him. Gwebi ROH

Mr Nigel Willis (aged 18), a farmer at Shamva. A Trooper, serving with C Squadron, Special Air Service, was killed in action in an ambush while on an external operation in Mozambique. 14/02/74.

Mr J. Freddie Wolfaard, Swanscoe Ranch, Nuanetsi, ambush, 09/02/78.

Mr J. Wright, Odzi, 10/09/77.

Mr Rodgers Wright, single, aged 62, was murdered at his home in the Umtali farming area between 22-24 October 1979. Herald

Mr Colin Andrew Shaw Young (aged 42), forester in charge of Westward Ho Estate, Charter Forestry Estates, in Melsetter. Cash had been taken by a renegade CT, Obert Dhawayo, from Michael Hood-Cree, who had drawn the payroll from the mobile bank at Skyline Junction. Michael was left for dead and the two tellers were also wounded. Police Reservists were deployed and Colin Young was with one stick in an ambush position on the Ndimba road leading into Ngorima TTL. He was killed in the contact. 29/04/75.

Mr Stephen Bothma Bernard 'Steve' Ziegler, Marandellas, was killed in a vehicle ambush in the Rusambo area while attached to 7th Battalion, Rhodesia Regiment. He was a Swiss national. 16/01/78.

A total of 84 commercial Farmers were on service with the Rhodesian Security Forces or Internal Affairs when they were either Killed in Action or were Killed on Active Service. 50 were with the para-military police so many were serving within their home districts. Those with the police comprised 28 with Police Reserve, 14 with PATU, 7 in BSAP/CID/Ground Coverage or Special Branch; whilst 1 was serving with the Police Reserve Air Wing. Those that were casualties on call-up with the Army were dispersed widely with several killed during external operations. 11 were with Rhodesia Regiment, 8 with Rhodesian Light Infantry, 4 with Special Air Services, 3 with Rhodesia African Rifles, 2 with the Selous Scouts. 1 was in each of Armoured Cars, Artillery and Engineers. 1 farmer died with another 7 RDR service men in one tragic engagement. Many farmers that were killed on their farms served with different units of the security forces under their obligations of territorial service.

Commercial farmers and families killed on their farms after 1980 (by date):

Mr Gerald William "Bill" Adams (aged 68) died tragically on 4th August 1980. He was manager of Stamford farm, approximately 9 kms from Salisbury and very close to Charles Prince airport (formerly Mount Hampden).

Gerald was born in Northamptonshire, England in December 1912, to William Adams and Jessie Adams (née Cullis). His father William was a well-known cricketer, having represented Northamptonshire and England.

In April 1949 Gerald, his wife, and two year old daughter sailed from Southampton, England, on the "Stirling Castle", and arrived in Port Elizabeth.

Bill Dawson wrote on Adams' murder:

"I was on the neighbouring farm (Rainham) at the time and had just put myself back to bed with a blinding hangover when wild shooting started. There was a small rifle range near the house and at first I thought the shooting was from there, but soon realised something other was going on. On the night before, Edgar Tekere was a guest at a party on Stamford farm given by the new owner, Mr. Machapisa. Some Guard Force personnel stationed at the farm went to the back door to ask for beer (or some more beer, as I suspect) but weren't given any. Later they fired some shots over the house to show their displeasure. Tekere, thinking himself under attack, leopard crawled into the bush. The following day he returned with some soldiers to teach the guard force a lesson. 'Bill' Adams, who was living in a manager's house on the farm ran into the house when the shooting started, to raise the alarm on the Agric Alert radio but was shot dead at close quarters."

Edgar Tekere, ranked third in the ZANU PF hierarchy and the Minister of Manpower, was charged with his murder. Despite the evidence, Tekere escaped by invoking the laws introduced by the former Rhodesia Government in regard to homeland security. Tekere was found not guilty by a majority of 2 to 1.

The Judge President, John Pittman, found Tekere guilty, while appointed assessors - magistrates Greenland and Nemapare - found Tekere not guilty based on the fact that Tekere had acted on the belief that he was suppressing a terrorist threat. Their two votes over-ruled that of the Judge President. S Lunderstedt

Mr Lorry James, Arcturus, 1980.

Mr Louis Volker, Arcturus, 1980.

Mr Michael 'Mick' Williams, Sessombi Ranch, Kwe Kwe, 30/12/80

Mr John Patrick Franklin (aged 36), Mutare, was killed on his farm Greater Sisal, March 1981. The Farmer, 30 March, 1981.

Mr Abraham Barend Roux (aged in his 60s), Victoria East.

Gunmen shot and killed a white couple early on 12th March 1982 at their farm homestead east of Fort Victoria in southern Zimbabwe. The shooting of Abraham and Margaret Roux, both in their 60's, brought to 13 the number of whites killed by dissident guerrillas since independence in April 1980, police sources said.

A police spokesman said unidentified men in civilian clothes had approached the Roux's homestead shortly after dawn. Mrs Roux died in a blast of automatic rifle fire as she opened a farm store, and the gunmen then turned on Mr. Roux and shot and killed him in the garage, a police spokesman said. 12/03/1982

Mrs Margaret Roux, (aged in her 60s), Victoria East, shot when opening the farm store moments before her husband, Abraham Roux, was killed. See above. 12/03/1982

Mr Philip (Helena's grandson, aged 20), Victoria East, Gunned down in home invasion, 1981. The Farmer, 30 March, 1981

Mr Geoff Staunton, beaten to death, 1981.

Mr Brian Dawe (aged 40), Mvaami Farm, Chinhoyi. 26th April, 1982.

He was married to Patricia with two young children when he took up a manager's position with a privately owned ranch called Mvaami in the Chinoya farming area. On a Monday evening, when Brian was watching television, his domestic worker brought three assailants, all armed with AK47s, into the house. They came up behind him on the sofa and their spokesman said, "We want money!" When Brian replied that he didn't have any, the spokesman opened fire with a burst that killed Brian instantly.

The Bull Terrier that was lying next to him launched itself at the attacker but was shot too. Brian's wife used this momentary distraction to scoop up the two children, and dash down the passage to the bedroom block. She got there just in time to close and lock the door before her attackers crashed against it, bawling threats at her. Fortunately there was a loaded rifle in the bedroom which she fired through the door. It jammed when the wrong ammunition was reloaded but fortunately the intruders didn't know this and fled from the farmhouse. Gwebi ROH

Mr David Charles Stirling, Makando Farm, Falls Road, gunned down in ambush, 9th July, 1982.

Mr Phil Ellman-Brown, Nyamandhlovu, August 1982.

The death of Phillip Ellman-Brown, 50 miles north of the city of Bulawayo, coincided with other portents that have eroded the hopefulness that surrounded the nation at independence in 1980.

Mr. Ellman-Brown was killed close to an area where more than 2,000 soldiers and policemen have been hunting in vain for the last 16 days for a group of "dissidents" holding hostage six foreign tourists, two of them American, to enforce demands for the release of detained comrades.

The divisions deepened last February when Mr. Mugabe dismissed Joshua Nkomo, the acknowledged leader of the Ndebele people, from the Cabinet, accusing him of plotting a coup, a charge that Mr. Nkomo denies. The Prime Minister's action ended a period of frail unity during which the rival guerrilla armies, which had professed loyalty to the two leaders during the war against the white minority, were united into a single force. At least 1,000 former members of Mr. Nkomo's army, and possibly twice that many, are now reported by military sources to have defected and taken to the bush as bandits or "dissidents."

It is members of this group who are suspected of killing Mr. Ellman-Brown, and they are the people holding hostage the foreign tourists and demanding the freeing of pro-Nkomo people. Some 200 such figures have been detained since February, mainly under emergency regulations inherited from the former white leadership. Those detained include Soviet-trained guerrilla commanders, two of whom, Dumiso Dabengwa and Lookout Masuku, are held in the Chikurubi maximum security prison. Reporting by Alan Cowell

Mr Harold Montague Hilton-Barber (aged 77), Hilton Ranch, Filabusi, Insiza, shot with a pistol, 02/04/1982.

Mr Benjamin Williams (aged 71), Turk Mine. abduction and murder. 31/12/82.

Benjie {also reported as 'Benjy'} was abducted on New Year's Eve with his grandson, David Bilang. Dissidents were seeking concessions from Mugabe's Government but Benjie was found shot dead two days later but at that stage there was no word on his grandson. J L Robinson and press reports

Mr David Bilang (aged 24), Turk Mine. abducted with his grandfather Benjy Williams and murdered 31/12/82.

David was abducted on New Year's Eve with his grandfather by dissidents that were seeking concessions from Mugabe's Government but it was many months before it was established that he had also been killed. J L Robinson and press reports

Mr David Walters (aged 26), Umgusa Ranch, Nyamandhlovu. Gunned down in ambush. 31/12/82

Five whites and a black were killed in an ambush in Matabelerland. The police identified the dead as David Walters, a farmer; his sons, Michael and Sean, his brother-in-law, John Hearn, 45; a friend, Philip Boiron, and a black security guard, Tamba Ndebele. They were all in a car traveling from Mr Walter's home in the Nyamandhlovu district west of Bulawayo when they were cut down by automatic weapons fire.

Mr Ian Brebner (aged 39), Luchabi Ranch, Figtree, was killed by a group of eight attackers and four spent cartridges were found at the scene, 13/6/1983.

Dissidents shot and killed Mr Brebner in southwest Zimbabwe, officials said today. He was shot in the chest on the Tuesday after being approached by about eight gunmen at the Lushabi Outspan Farm, 40 miles west of Bulawayo in Matabeleland Province, a Government statement said.

Matabeleland farmers were armed with automatic weapons this year in an effort to curb anti-Government violence in which more than 100 people, 23 of them white, have died. Mr. Brebner's family had moved into Bulawayo during that year because of the security problems. Press reports

Mr Allan Dicks (aged 70), Somabula. Club invasion. 9/5/1987.

A gang of dissidents approached the Somabula Club in the darkness with their weapons, walked around the side to an open window and fired automatic bursts from AK47s at Roy Futter, Thys Lourens, Allen Dicks and Glyn Williams who were playing darts in the club close to this window. They all died. See more details under Mr Roy Futter.

Mr Roy Futter (aged 46), Somabula. Club invasion. 9/5/1987. As the sun sank below the horizon after tennis at Somabhula Club, the brais were lit and after supper was eaten most of the members gravitated towards the clubhouse after tennis. Gunfire was heard that Saturday night at about 9.30 p.m.

A gang of four Terrorists – the modern day “dissidents” - had been observing the club since midday and no one paid any attention to the stranger lounging around the blue Datsun 120Y. The gang waited patiently until night fell and then approached the club in the darkness with their weapons, walked around the side to an open window and fired automatic bursts from AK47s at Roy Futter, Thys Lourens, Allen Dicks and Glyn Williams who were playing darts in the club close to this window. Thys, Allen and Glyn were all killed instantly in this fusillade of bullets but Roy was not wounded and realised that he needed to get the five women and youngster to safety so quickly ushered them to the shower rooms where he locked them in for their safety. Roy then returned to the now darkened club to try and secure the situation but was gunned down by the gang as he attempted to close the door to the bar. His son Greg, 11 at the time, lying on the floor pretending to be dead, witnessed his father being shot. Frank Mkwebu, the club barman, took this opportunity to try and escape but was shot and wounded in his leg and was dragged back into the club but in spite of his wounds managed to hide by dragging himself under a table when the terrorists were distracted. The gang, now intent on escaping, broke into another vehicle looking for a weapon but soon drove off in their own car into the darkness. Gwebi ROH

Mr Glen Williams (aged 48), farmer of Ruby Ranch, Somabula. Club invasion. 09/05/1987.

A gang of dissidents approached the Somabula Club in the darkness with their weapons, walked around the side to an open window and fired automatic bursts from AK47s at Roy Futter, Thys Lourens, Allen Dicks and Glyn Williams who were playing darts in the club close to this window. Mr Roy Dabbs, Gweru, 19/05/1987.

Mr Andrew William “Andy” MacDonald, Figtree/Marula, 18/08/1987.

Andy MacDonald was born in Mufulira. Andy also played for the Springboks in the 1965 tour to Australia. Sometime in the years after the tour Andy became embroiled in an argument with a lion.

Lions were causing problems on his farm; killing livestock. Andy set out, together with his foreman, to solve this problem. Andy shot a lioness, with his 303 rifle. But he did not kill her and he and his foreman started tracking the wounded lioness through the bush. Coming around a large anthill, the lioness pounced on Andy who did manage to lift the gun to partially defend himself, but which also resulted in the rifle being bent and rendered useless as a weapon. This left Andy wrestling with the lioness. His foreman, in the meantime and despite being armed, ran off to get help

Andy was a strong, powerful man and was obviously very fit. He eventually managed to get his hand in the lion's mouth and get hold of the lion's tongue. The lioness finally released its grip on Andy and crawled a few metres away before dying from the gunshot wound. But by this time the damage had been done, leaving Andy with part of his thumb and first finger missing as well as some badly mangled fingers. There were also extensive lacerations on his legs and arms, leaving him needing 480 stitches when he got medical attention.

Free of the lion, Andy set off to get help for himself and walked a good number of kilometres before he was picked up by one of his family and the foreman although they at first thought that he was a farm worker or villager as he was caked with mud and congealed blood from the severely mauled arm, he was unrecognisable.

Andy eventually left Zambia in the early 70's and moved down to Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe). He and his wife were killed in the ambush just outside Bulawayo in the mid 1980's when their car was set alight. The killers were never found. The blame was put on dissidents or the South Africans although there was speculation that Andy's involvement in breeding dogs for the police may have played a part in his untimely death.

Mrs Nettie MacDonald, Figtree/Marula, 18/08/1987, killed with her husband, Andy, in an ambush just outside Bulawayo when their car was set alight.

Mr John Norvall, Nyandhlovu, 26/8/1987.

John Norvall was ambushed when he stopped at a small river crossing. Eight men with AK47 assault rifles opened fire from a distance of about six feet. The white rancher, whose Scottish grandfather came to this country before the turn of the century, was on his way to buy a cow from a black neighbour. He bled to death in the front seat of his Mazda pick-up.

His son who took over refuses to visit black neighbours to buy cattle. Instead, since his father's death, along what he calls the "western front" where seven miles of his property abut black-owned land, he has seen to the construction of a reinforced barbed-wire fence.

His son now drives the same dusty roads of their 24,800-acre ranch, but unlike his father, Mark Norvall never travels alone. "They all think I am a really mean swine. I think it pays to get across that image" says Norvall, aged 27, who does not go out of his house without a pistol in his belt and a German-made automatic rifle slung over his shoulder. He rides with four or five heavily armed guards. At river crossings and farm gates, Norvall stops, orders the guards out and waits, rifle in hand, while they search the nearby bush.

The white farmers of this dry, wind-blown southwestern Zimbabwe region of Matabeleland had a rough time of it last year. Elusive, nebulously motivated dissidents - the term loosely applied to the rebels or bandits who for six years terrorized this region - struck at the farmers with unexpected ferocity.

The killings of the whites of Matabeleland and the transformation of their vast ranches into barbed-wire encampments are perhaps the most nagging failure in Zimbabwe's otherwise successful effort to build a cohesive, multiracial society. Blaine Harden

Mr Brian Hubbard, Gwanda, September-October, 1987.

Mr Dick Bawden, Turk Mine.

Mr Stratford, Umguzu.

Mrs Stratford, Umguzu.

Granddaughters Taverners, Umguzu.

Mr Dando, Shangani.

Missionaries were targetted by dissidents with 16 deaths documented at Umzingwane on two farms early on 26th November, 1987. All victims had been hacked to death.

Those killed at the Olive Tree Farm were Jerry Keightley (40), and his wife Marian Keightley (39), their daughters Gay Deborah (16) and Glynis (14), and their 18-month-old son, Barnabas. Another Zimbabwean, Penelope Sarah Lovett (28), and two Americans, David Emerson (35), of Osakis, Minn., and Karen Sharon Iversdahl (32), who was reported to be from Montana, were also killed.

Those killed at the New Adam Farm were David Marais (35), a South African; his wife, Katherine Marais (34), and their son, Ethan (4). Also killed were Robert Hill (38), and his wife, Gaynor (27), and their 6-week-old-old son, Benjamin; Hazel Russell (46), and Jean Campbell, a Briton. Laura Russell (13) escaped.

Commercial farmers who died post 2000 - or who were victims - from Farm Invasions, theft or for motives unknown:

Mr David Stevens (aged 49), Murehwa South, Saturday, 15th April, 2000.

David Stevens, who shared profits with workers at his farm 60 miles east of Harare, was attacked by so-called veterans of Zimbabwe's independence war. He sought help from officers at the local police station, who did nothing to stop him being abducted and dragged into the bush, where he was tortured and shot.

Gary Luke's face was purple with bruising and caked with dry blood. Propped up in a hospital bed with a compressed fracture to his skull, he was one of six white farmers abducted by armed supporters of the Zimbabwean president, Robert Mugabe. He and another farmer, Steve Krynauw, were accused of supporting the opposition Movement for Democratic Change and were beaten unconscious with iron bars, car fan belts and rocks. They were among five farmers who had tried to rescue their neighbour, David Stevens, who was abducted and shot dead.

Four on trial, Richard Svisviro, Muyengwa Munyuki, Charles Matanda and Douglas Chitekuteku, are accused of being part of a gang of about 15 who abducted David Stevens, killed him and performed a bizarre ritual. Banda Katsvamudanga, who is accused of firing the shot, disappeared after being released from remand prison and passed away in Macheke in May 2016. Peta Thornycraft.

Mr Martin Geoffery Olds (aged 43), Bubi-Umguza, 18th April, 2000.

A scorched and bullet-scarred farmhouse showed the struggle mounted by Martin during a two-hour siege before he was killed by 70 armed attackers.

Gunmen launched a dawn raid on his home at Compensation Farm in Matabeleland, 400 miles south-west of the capital, Harare. He was repeatedly wounded during a gun battle that left his right leg shattered. However, he continued to fight his assailants and wounded two before succumbing.

Local farmers said Mr Olds had been a target for murder by fanatical supporters of Mr Mugabe who were brought by bus to the area.

Mr Olds told a neighbouring farmer during a desperate radio conversation at about 6 a.m.: "I've been shot and I need an ambulance". His attackers had arrived about 30 minutes earlier with automatic weapons. They burst through his security fence to surround the house.

Mr Olds defended himself with a shotgun and a hunting rifle. His right leg was broken but he made his own splints and continued to fight back. He fled through the back door after petrol bombs were thrown through the windows, and was shot in his other leg. He was caught, beaten and then shot in the head.

As the alarm was raised, nearby farmers tried to stabilise the situation. Guy Parkin, 20, approached the farmhouse at 6.45 a.m. He said: "When I got there, there were lots of cars outside his gate. When I asked one of the war veterans what was going on, a shot was fired over me."

Mr Parkin, fearing for his life, hastily retreated. He said most of the attackers were drunk and waving empty beer bottles. About 45 minutes later, Mr Olds was dead. Craig Wood, a local farmer, saw his body and said he had been "severely beaten". Police did not appear until 9.30 a.m., when the attackers did flee.

The local people are Ndebele speakers with a deep loathing for Mr Mugabe's government. Local farmers suspect that shock troops of the ruling Zanu-PF party are being brought into the area to cause renewed unrest. Mr Olds was alone in the farmhouse when he was attacked as he had evacuated his family to Bulawayo after being warned that he was a likely target for the mob of between 100 and 300 supposed war veterans who had been bused into Matabeleland.

An ambulance treated two of his assailants for shotgun wounds to the legs and the medical crew confirmed that their patients were from the Shona tribe. Gwebi ROH
Mr Alan Stewart Dunn, Seke, 7th May 2000.

Mr Dunn was said to have been a regional committee member of the MDC which said he had been persecuted for his political beliefs.

Mr Dunn, who emigrated from Kent in 1971, was lured out of his farmhouse, 50 miles south of Harare, by six men who beat him with chains and sticks, broke chairs over his head and smashed him with concrete blocks. He suffered severe head injuries and both his arms were fractured. He was taken to Harare hospital where he died on the Monday. According to his wife, nothing was stolen from the house, the attack lasted five to 10 minutes and the men fled from the farm immediately afterwards.

Mr John Weeks (aged 65), Seke, 14th May 2000.

White Zimbabwean farmer John Weeks has died from shotgun injuries sustained in a clash linked to the violent campaign calling for the re-distribution of land.

Mr Weeks died on the Sunday - four days after being shot in the chest while on his farm at Beatrice south of the capital, Harare and about 30 miles from where farmer Alan Dunn was bludgeoned to death a week ago.

The head of the Commercial Farmers' Union, David Hasluck, said the attack on Mr Weeks, who supported Zimbabwe's opposition Movement for Democratic Change, was "definitely political".

He said Mr Weeks' attackers were linked to the groups who have been invading farms across Zimbabwe.

Mr Tony Oates, Zvimba North, shot and killed, 31st May 2000.

Intruders shot dead a white farmer at his home in Zimbabwe during a gunbattle in which one of the assailants also died. Tony Oates is the fifth white farmer to have been killed since mobs of squatters and ruling party militants illegally occupied hundreds of white-owned properties.

He was shot dead late Wednesday on his farm about 40 miles north-west of Harare, the Commercial Farmers Union said. The intruders cut the burglar bars in the bedroom where Oates was sleeping. His wife, who was watching television in the house, escaped. "He shot at the intruders and killed one of them, but he was also shot and died," a union spokeswoman said.

The union said the killing was criminally rather than politically inspired. Oates' farm in the fertile district of Trelawney tobacco and grain district was not occupied by the illegal squatters who are demanding land they say was stolen during the British colonial area. But several properties neighbouring Oates' farm have been occupied by mobs since February.

On that Sunday night, Willem Botha, who was in his sixties, was beaten to death by suspected robbers near Beatrice. Although squatters were not accused of involvement, other farmers blamed his death on the "breakdown of law and order" caused by the land invasions, which have been encouraged by President Robert Mugabe.

Mr Henry Swan Elsworth (aged 70), Kwekwe, murdered in ambush, 12th December, 2000.

Henry Elsworth, a former Member of Parliament and a prominent commercial farmer, was shot dead in an ambush on his farm on Tuesday evening, his family and police said yesterday.

Elsworth's 20-year-old son Ian, speaking from a stretcher bed in a Harare hospital, said independence war veterans and supporters of the ruling party who had been trying to take over his farm since February had murdered his father.

Mrs Gloria Olds (aged 68), Bubi-Umguza. Mother of Martin Olds. 4th March, 2001.

Mrs Olds was ambushed at the gates of her homestead on Silverstreams Farm. She was the seventh white farmer killed since last April. Her son, Martin, who lived on the neighbouring Compensation Farm, was murdered in a dawn raid by 70 gunmen on April 18.

Although Silverstreams is not among the 900 white farms still occupied by squatters, neighbours believe the murder of Mrs Olds was a political killing. The entire farming community around Nyamandhlovu, which has been particularly affected by the land invasions, joined a search for the killers, fanning out across the bush in four-wheel-drive vehicles, guided by two light aircraft.

The getaway vehicle was spotted heading north towards Tsholotsho and a witness told farmers that it contained three men. But it was soon lost amid the winding tracks and dense bush. Police officers were sent to the scene, though farmers bitterly remember that the killers of Martin Olds were allowed through a police road block while making their getaway. No one has been convicted for his murder, or any of the others.

Mr Ralph Fenwick Corbett. Kwekwe. 6th August 2001.

The death was reported in hospital of Ralph Corbett, a farmer from Kwekwe in the Midlands, who sustained fatal head injuries during an axe attack by a Zanu PF mob. He had been trussed up with wire and beaten about the head with an axe on Friday in what his family say was a politically motivated killing. Mr Corbett is the ninth white farmer killed since President Robert Mugabe launched the land invasions nearly two years ago. The murdered farmer's land has been occupied by "war veterans" for a year.

Mr Terrence 'Terry' Ford (aged 55), Mhondoro, 18th March, 2002.

Terry Ford was shot dead in his farm outside Harare and his body was found by his domestic worker early in the morning. There were blood stains on one wall, and marks in the earth showing he had struggled in the garden and then made for his pick-up at the back of the house.

Tyre marks show he rammed the closed security gate repeatedly and managed to dislodge one of the posts.

He was then dragged out of the truck, held up against a tree and shot through the front of his head, probably with his own revolver.

For several hours after neighbouring farmers arrived, shortly after 6am, the smallest of his four dogs, Squeak, an old Jack Russell, lay on the bloodied, muddy body, covered with a turquoise bedspread, growling if anyone moved close, until he was locked away to allow police to examine the body.

Mr Ford's farm, 27 miles west of Harare, had lain idle since Mr Mugabe's "war veterans" stopped him farming two years ago. He found part-time work as a school groundsman. Mr Ford spent that weekend with his girlfriend Naomi Raaff, a teacher, in Harare, but suddenly decided to return to the farm to check on his property.

"He was nervous and thought he would be cleaned out, so in the middle of Sunday afternoon he went home," Ms Raaff said. At 11.30 on Sunday night, he phoned his neighbour and cousin David Lewis and said intruders were in the house, but that he had fired a shot into the air and they had left.

"He said the dogs were there and told me not to come, but asked if I could phone the police. I wrote down the name of the constable who took the call, who said the police driver was asleep. I begged him to wake him up."

Mr Ford phoned other neighbours, who also called the police. It was then that they said they could not come.

Mr Ford was the 10th white farmer murdered in Zimbabwe since the land crisis began. Peta Thornycraft.

Mr Thomas 'Tom' Bayley (aged 88), Danbery Park, Mount Hamden, was killed during a siege, 1st May 2002.

The British-born farmer had been under siege by Mugabe supporters for 35 days when he fell and broke a leg.

A friend and farmer said: "Tom passed away in his sleep after two years of threats and interference with his life's work.

"He and Bobs endured daily threats and war songs all night, every night. The physical pain he suffered when he broke his leg was nothing compared to the mental pain of being forced off his farm."

Mr Charles T. T. Anderson (aged 44), Glendale/Mazowe, shot and killed, 2nd June, 2002.

The man who shot and killed Charles Anderson four years previously was sentenced to death by the Zimbabwe High Court in 2006. 31 year old Munetsi Kadzinga was given the death sentence by high court Judge Bharat Patel after he was convicted of the 2002 murder. The South African Mail and Guardian newspaper reports that Kadzinga claimed in court that he had been told to carry out attacks on white farmers by senior government officials, including Minister John Nkomo, who ran the Home Affairs ministry at the time. But the judge dismissed the claims and said there were no extenuating circumstances in the case.

Mr Philip 'Phil' Laing (aged 51), Honde Valley, was killed by poisoning, 19/12/2003. Two men were in intensive care after they were forced to drink paint thinners and acid by armed attackers dressed as soldiers who abducted them from a tea estate in eastern Zimbabwe. Ernest Pfumbi, 44, and Maphion Njopera, 35, are accounts clerks, at a British-owned tea company, Eastern Highlands Plantation, in the scenic Honde Valley, 188 miles east of Harare.

The company's chief accountant, Philip Laing, 48, an Australian, died after being beaten and then tortured into drinking acid. He was found handcuffed to a tree the next morning.

Police were told that four men in camouflage uniforms arrived at the company's offices and told staff they wanted to "look for foreign currency and evidence of involvement with the opposition" (the Movement for Democratic Change).

When they found nothing they took Christmas wages and kidnapped seven people, including two women. But a security guard escaped and raised the alarm.

It took a whole night to find the victims handcuffed together 50 miles from the company's offices. Peta Thornycraft

Mr Pieter Silverton, January 2004.

Mr Ole Sunde (aged 66), Banket. 6th February, 2005.

Mr Sunde was strangled by suspected war veterans and ruling party militia as the effects of the five-year land occupation crisis lingered on.

He was abducted from his occupied Musonzowa Farm near Banket, 95 kilometers northwest of Harare, and driven into the bush where he was severely assaulted before he was strangled with a wire. Mr Sunde was rushed to Banket district hospital with serious head injuries but was pronounced dead on arrival.

Mr Donald 'Don' Stewart also reported as 'Stuart' (aged 68), Norton. 26th November 2005.

Mr Stewart, a dairy farmer and horticultural vegetable producer in the Norton/Harare West farming area, was viciously and brutally assaulted by a gang of intruders prior to his murder by strangulation in the early hours. After the viciously brutal assault and subsequent murder the gang had time to destroy evidence by covering the body with mattresses, dousing them with petrol siphoned from farm vehicles and then torching the homestead.

Recent invasions and attacks on the remaining white farmers was triggered by anti-inflammatory language from State Security and Land Reform Minister Didymus Mutasa, who referred to them as 'filth and 'dirt' on 26th October 2005.

Mr Phillip Tenant, 1st April 2006.

Mr Mike Campbell (aged 79), Chegutu. 6th April 2011.

Mike moved to Mount Carmel farm in 1974 and added a neighbouring plot of land in 1980. As well as farming, Campbell set up an extensive nature reserve on the property and also created the Biri River Safari Lodge.

The following year, however, as Robert Mugabe's land reform programme gathered pace, between 20 and 30 black men entered the estate, and refused to leave. Anxious that they might cut down trees on the estate to build homes, Campbell gave them a shed to sleep in. Over the following decade, invaders gradually took over Campbell's farm; they burned down the safari lodge and farmstead, and killed all the cattle and wildlife on the farm. Hundreds of Campbell's workers lost their jobs and Campbell's farm manager and other workers were arrested and tortured by the police after they attempted to defend the farm.

Campbell contested the seizure in the Zimbabwe supreme court, but there was no recourse. He went to the tribunal of the Southern African Development Community (SADC), which ruled that the confiscation of the farm was racially discriminatory, offended the rule of law and violated principles of democracy. Mugabe said the finding was "nonsense".

Campbell and his wife, Angela, and son-in-law Ben Freeth were abducted on 29th June, 2008 to a militia camp. Over nine hours were violently assaulted using "falanga" torture.

Freeth's feet were beaten with sjamboks – whips made of hippopotamus hide. They put a burning stick into Angela Campbell's mouth to force her to sign a paper promising to discontinue the court case. The three were then dumped on the roadside. But they did carry on, Freeth appearing at the final hearing in Namibia in a wheelchair. His father-in-law was too ill to attend.

Mike and Angela Campbell moved to a friend's house in Harare. His loss of numeracy skills meant that he was unable to prepare his employees' wages.

He died in Harare on 8 April 2011 from complications of the 2008 assault.

Mrs Mary Austen (aged 74), Kwekwe, 17th November 2008.

Mrs Austen, from the UK, was beaten to death and her husband left in a critical condition after a violent attack on the couple's farm in Zimbabwe. The body of Mary Austen was discovered two days after she was murdered. Her husband Neville, a 77-year-old Zimbabwean, was found unable to move or speak. Police said that when they arrived at the scene of horror, they found furniture strewn all over the house after a struggle between the Austens and their attackers. Mary died from numerous head injuries. A neighbour, who knew her well, described the attack as 'really brutal'. 'She was absolutely bludgeoned to death,' the neighbour said.

Mr Bob Vaughan-Evans (aged in his late 70s), Gweru, assault during home invasion, 3rd July 2009.

Vaughan-Evans and his wife Jean were attacked late at night in their home by an intruder wielding an axe. The attack left Mr Vaughan-Evans dead and his wife unconscious. She is still recovering in hospital. The attack on the elderly couple was the third such incident in the space of the last six months, and the prior attack had already left Jean wheelchair bound.

Mr Ray van Rensburg (aged 76), Gweru, 15th July 2009.

Intruders broke into the house and repeatedly struck the sleeping Mr van Rensburg on the back of the head. They then fled with the farmer's wallet containing $25.

Mrs Sophie Hart (aged 75), Kadoma. 29th August 2009.

An elderly farmer's wife, who was born in the Free State, Mrs Hart was murdered on her smallholding 150km west of Harare on Saturday, while her husband was watching the rugby between the Springboks and the Wallabies at a neighbouring farm.

A family member, Eben du Toit, said on Monday that Sophie Hart was alone at home when she was attacked. When her husband, Jan Hart, 79, came home shortly before sunset, he found his wife's body tied up in the kitchen and covered in blood. She had been strangled.

Mr Johannes Jacobus "Kobus" Joubert (aged 67), Stockdale Farm, Chegutu, murdered during armed robbery, 25th October, 2010.

Kobus had been a very active and well respected member in Zimbabwe's tobacco industry for most of his life being a past President of the ZTA. He was always a great mentor to all who are involved in the industry in which he was so passionate.

Kobus Joubert was shot dead and his wife Mariaan, aged 64, was assaulted by assailants who also robbed them of $10,000 (£6,300) in cash.

"We are not sure whether this murder was criminal or political, at this stage, and this is very sensitive matter for our members," said Mike Clark, who monitors unrest on remaining white-owned farms for the Commercial Farmers' Union.

"Kobus had about 50ha (123 acres) of tobacco in the ground when he died and so that has to be reaped somehow."

Mr Joubert was one of the few remaining large scale tobacco growers left in Zimbabwe. Two years ago, Mr Joubert, a former president of the Zimbabwe Tobacco Association, was attacked by militants loyal to Robert Mugabe, the Zimbabwean president, The couple were forced to flee their home, Scottsdale farm, in the Chegutu district about 60 miles west of Harare, and set up camp in the grass alongside a national highway for several weeks.

When the police tried to move them away, the couple protested saying that they had no other home.

The late vice President Joseph Msika, who had tried to assist several white farmers since land invasions began in 2000, secured a permit for Mr Joubert to remain in his home and continue farming. Peta Thornycraft and CFU

Mr Lourens Abrams Korsten, assaulted 31st December 2010, died 28th February 2011.

Mr Colin Zietsman, Mvurwi, tortured, 2nd September, 2011.

According to the CFU, Zietsman died instantly while his wife Phillipa is recovering in hospital after being bludgeoned by a blunt object.

"We have to report the callous and savage attack on Colin Zietsman and his wife Phillipa 'Tinks', which resulted in the death of well-known Centenary farmer. They were attacked and ruthlessly beaten by two individuals with blunt objects whilst they slept in their upstairs bedroom on their farm at 2 am on the Friday morning.

"Phillipa is now recovering in hospital in Harare from several severe injuries but is conscious. We all pray for her full and swift recovery from this terrible incident," CFU said in a statement.

"Although the motive appears to have been robbery, there was no money in the house at the time as wages were only due for collection from the bank today," the statement said. The CFU described it as a "sad loss of another great member of our farming community, who merely wanted to farm in this great country of ours".

The union urged all farmers and their families to be extremely vigilant at all times, saying this was the second incident of its type using similar tactics that were used on a farm only one farm away last year.

"That farmer was also savagely beaten and was hospitalised for several months before his final recovery from his severe injuries. In that case money was stolen but the assailants have never been arrested despite a substantial reward being offered.

"If it is the same people involved then they may strike again somewhere because this time they came away without finding any cash in the house which may be what they were after," CFU said. Press report

Mr Keith Nicholson, Banket, shot and killed, 14th September, 2011.

Keith Nicolson farmed in Raffingora then in DRC and also in Zambia. He returned to retire near Banket. He was shot and killed while trying to rescue a neighbour who had been abducted by four heavily armed men.

The group gained entry through the security boom at Mazvikadei Dam under false pretences. They then proceeded to the house of local garage owner Mr Tim Morgan where they again gained access to the house on the pretence of wanting to visit one of the gardeners employed by the Morgans. They then tied up all the staff and ransacked the house but could not find any money.

When Mr and Mrs Morgan returned in the evening they were ambushed and tied up.

They then took Mr Morgan back to his garage in his Toyota twincab. At this stage Mrs Morgan was able to alert neighbours in the village, Messrs Henry Allam, Keith Nicolson and other unnamed persons who followed the stolen vehicle in which the kidnapped garage owner was being driven away in.

They followed it down the Raffingora Road for some distance but once the occupants of the vehicle noticed they were being followed they stopped and turned the vehicle around to shine the lights onto the vehicle following them. They then fired many rounds at the vehicle forcing it off the road and forced the occupants to take cover. There was an ensuing gun battle as the occupants of the other vehicle also fired back. The time was now 9.30 p.m.

Three of the group then ran into the bush away from the vehicle so Keith Nicolson, thinking that everyone had run from the vehicle, rushed forward to release the hostage, Mr Morgan. However, he was immediately shot dead by a fourth attacker who was still in the vehicle, and who subsequently ran away. Mr Morgan managed to flee the vehicle uninjured and the vehicle was abandoned and henceforth recovered.

The armed gang was believed to have subsequently been collected and driven away in another vehicle, the registration details of which are known but no one has been apprehended.

Mr Bobby Ervine, Mazooma Farm, Guruve. Bobby was savagely assaulted on the evening of 12 October 2011 at his home on his farm in Guruve and has remained in hospital until his passing on the morning of 8 April 2012.

"About 18 white farmers were killed in violent takeovers of their land while almost all of the country's 620,000 permanent and seasonal farm-workers were driven away from their homes" John Worsley-Worswick, the late head of Justice for Agriculture, a Harare-based lobby group, said. Together with dependents, those workers accounted for two million people, he said.

At the same time, about 78 black farm managers have reportedly been killed.

Extortion, targeted attacks and robbery:

A new wave of intimidation replaced the farm invasions and theft. Five murders were committed in the past four years within a 40 km radius as farmers are expected to pay large amounts of extortion money to political authorities.

The tragic and very brutal murder of Malcolm Francis and his daughter, Catherine, on a farm to the north of the country highlights the fragile nature of life without the rule of law. They were attacked in the evening of Saturday, 10th May, 2014 in Guruve when walking the dogs. They survived from axe wounds for several days before succumbing to their horrific injuries in hospital. Catherine passed away on the Wednesday, 14th May and Malcolm on 21st May, 2014.

A farm manager in Triangle was found dead with a deep cut on his neck, a day after paying his workers their wages. Adolph Willem Botha (aged 69) of Mpapa Farm in Triangle was probably killed on Friday 6th May, 2016 as blood was noticed on the veranda by a domestic worker at 6:00 a.m. on Saturday so summoned help. A blood stained machete, bare blood stained foot prints, his open wallet and cell phone were found inside. Masvingo police spokesperson Inspector Charity Mazula said police are eager to interview a general hand, Christopher Musiiwa of Chikova Village under Chief Madzivire in Chivi who was with Botha on Friday.

90 year old farmer, Bertram Gardner, was murdered in a robbery on 19th June 2016. He had offered two men a lift but they crushed his head with a big rock before dumping his body in a bushy area along the Chinhoyi Baguta Road. The assailants made off with his Ford Ranger truck, a wallet with $200 and clothes.
