Note:

'D' Squadron, SAS was the cover name given to the South African Special Forces, Alpha Group from 1 Reconnaissance Commando (1 RC) and Bravo Group from 5 RC who worked alongside 'C' Squadron SAS in the south-east corner of Rhodesia and Gaza Province, of Mozambique from late 1977 to June 1978. South African personnel were also deployed with Rhodesian SAS on Op Splinter on Lake Kariba, in 1978.

SADF personnel that were killed in Zimbabwe after Independence:

A total of 5,000 former members of Rhodesian Security Forces joined the South African Defence Force.

14 out of the group of 18 that had entered Zimbabwe in 1981 made their way back to South Africa after a contact. Operation Drama was aimed to destabilise the newly independent government of Zimbabwe. Its objective, among others was to ensure that the government did not provide support to the ANC and PAC in their armed struggles. There has been the suggestion that this group may also have intended to rescue some detainees.

Beech, Robert Trevor, Sergeant, Special Forces, South Africa Defence Force, former RLI, was officially 'killed in the operational area as a result of contact with the enemy'. There are reports of a contact with the Zimbabwe Army within 60 km inside Zimbabwe in 1981.

Berry, Peter David, Staff Sergeant, Special Forces, South Africa Defence Force, former SAS, was officially 'killed in the operational area as a result of contact with the enemy'. There are reports of a contact with the Zimbabwe Army within 60 km inside Zimbabwe in 1981.

Khiwa, Private, has not been acknowledged by the South African authorities to have been a serving member but his name is mentioned by others to be the fourth SADF member to have died in the contact with the Zimbabwe Army within 60 km inside Zimbabwe in 1981.

Wessels, Johan Andrew, Sergeant, Special Forces, South Africa Defence Force, former RLI, was officially 'killed in the operational area as a result of contact with the enemy'. There are reports of a contact with the Zimbabwe Army within 60 km inside Zimbabwe in 1981.

The RLIRA post their Roll of Honour into three categories: Killed in Action, Killed on Active Service and Book of Remembrance. On this webpage, the author has combined KIA with KOAS in the operational area in the first section, and the second section covers KOAS when non-operational and DOAS.

Tribute is made to the first researcher who posted in this field - notably Dr J Wood. There are numerous errors or omissions in the raw data that he accessed but he has made many corrections and presents his roll chronologically.

The team behind 'The Fallen' on Facebook checked gravestones and many records to update the initial records that were published.

Data is continually being validated and corrections are welcome.

Recently photographs of headstones at graves have been posted. Age of casualties are being checked daily on this Roll of Honour and corrected. The actual age was not reported accurately in original posts on most other sites and in many cases it was inadvertently rounded up when month of birth was overlooked.
